

Table of Contents

Acknowledgements	ix
Notes on the Contributors	xii
Chapter 1 ‘We are Determined to Exterminate Them’: The Genocidal Impetus Behind Commercial Stock Farmer Invasions of Hunter-Gatherer Territories Mohamed Adhikari	1
Chapter 2 ‘The Bushman is a Wild Animal to be Shot at Sight’: Annihilation of the Cape Colony’s Foraging Societies by Stock-Farming Settlers in the Eighteenth and Nineteenth Centuries Mohamed Adhikari	32
Chapter 3 ‘Like a Wild Beast, He Can be Got for the Catching’: Child Forced Labour and the ‘Taming’ of the San along the Cape’s North-Eastern Frontier, c.1806–1830 Jared McDonald	60
Chapter 4 ‘We Exterminated Them, and Dr. Philip Gave the Country’: The Griqua People and the Elimination of San from South Africa’s Transorangia Region Edward Cavanagh	88
Chapter 5 Vogelfrei and Besitzlos , with no Concept of Property: Divergent Settler Responses to Bushmen and Damara in German South West Africa Robert Gordon	108
Chapter 6 Why Racial Paternalism and not Genocide? The Case of the Ghanzi Bushmen of Bechuanaland Mathias Guenther	134

Chapter 7	The Destruction of Hunter-Gatherer Societies on the Pastoralist Frontier: The Cape and Australia Compared Nigel Penn	159
Chapter 8	‘No Right to the Land’: The Role of the Wool Industry in the Destruction of Aboriginal Societies in Tasmania (1817–1832) and Victoria (1835–1851) Compared Lyndall Ryan	185
Chapter 9	Indigenous Dispossession and Pastoral Employment in Western Australia during the Nineteenth Century: Implications for Understanding Colonial Forms of Genocide Ann Curthoys	210
Chapter 10	‘A Fierce and Irresistible Cavalry’: Pastoralists, Homesteaders and Hunters on the American Plains Frontier Tony Barta	232
Chapter 11	Dispossession, Ecocide, Genocide: Cattle Ranching and Agriculture in the Destruction of Hunting Cultures on the Canadian Prairies Sidney L. Harring	259
Chapter 12	Seeing Receding Hunter-Gatherers and Advancing Commercial Pastoralists: ‘Nomadisation’, Transfer, Genocide Lorenzo Veracini	286
Select Bibliography		305
Index		339